

War of Nerves Starts Against Batista's Rule

Phone Call Interruptions Are Employed

They Cause a Flood Of Rumors About Government Cave In

HAVANA (AP) — Partisans of rebel leader Fidel Castro launched a war of nerves today against the government of President Batista.

They broke into hundreds of private telephone conversations in Havana shouting, "We have taken the presidential palace, long live Fidel Castro."

The interruptions started a flood of rumors that Batista's government had collapsed.

Simultaneously, rebels distributed thousands of leaflets in Havana and nearby towns and cities calling upon Cubans to stay away from work today.

Early reports indicated, however, most workers were flocking back to work throughout Cuba. They faced loss of their jobs if they didn't.

Artists and technicians at one of Havana's privately owned television stations went on strike and police took over the establishment. These stations and all newspapers have been strongly censored since Batista suspended constitutional guarantees for 45 days.

The government and army claimed "absolute calm and normalcy" prevailed throughout the nation.

Batista, from his office behind blocked iron gates in the presidential palace, declared "there won't be any general strike. If it is tried it will be quickly smashed."

In Havana and the provinces, there was mounting tension, uncertainty and confusion as rebels spread rumors Batista had been ousted.

Castro's rebel radio continued broadcasts urging Cubans to strike and gave them instructions on how to make Molotov cocktail bombs to continue widespread sabotage and night bombings.

Army headquarters announced that two persons were killed and three injured when a bomb destroyed a house in Quantanamo.

Batista ordered a crackdown on strike agitators and saboteurs as army and police searched the capital for nine men charged with masterminding the strike move.

Authorities warned that anyone caught carrying arms or trying to impede operation of business would get the same treatment as rebels fighting with Fidel Castro in the Sierra Mountains of Oriente province.

The crackdown appeared to have blasted rebel hopes of staging a strike that could have split the armed forces and toppled the government.

President Expected To Stay in Capital Until Congress Quits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower now is expected to remain in Washington until Congress quits for the year.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty indicated today that Eisenhower has abandoned earlier tentative plans to start a vacation at Newport, R.I., whenever the House recessed. At on time, the House planned to recess at the end of this week until the civil rights debate in the Senate was completed.

House leaders have dropped the recess plan as a result of the speedup in the Senate debate, and Hagerty said:

"I would think that the President now would remain in Washington until the Congress adjourns."

No adjournment date has been set but it now looks as though both houses will quite late this month or in early September.

Husband, Wife Have Battle In Their Cars

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP) — An outraged wife chased her husband around town in her 8-year-old car, repeatedly ramming his brand new one, police said today.

When the dust settled the husband had fled afoot, leaving a car that was ready for the junk yard, and his spiteful spouse was in jail. Police reconstructed yesterday's events this way:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smallfield, both 42, argued while drinking at their home. The subject: other women. Smallfield departed before his wife had finished the dispute.

He hopped in his car, then she in hers.

She caught him at Valley Blvd. and Westminster Ave. and banged into him, shouting: "I'll teach you."

She slammed into him again at Valley and Charnwood Ave., shouting: "Turn around and fight like a man."

After hit No. 3 the husband lit out for the side streets, and lost his pursuer.

With a sigh of relief, he headed for his office. That was a mistake. Mrs. Smallfield was lying in ambush. Whammo! Another crumpled fender.

Smallfield abandoned ship. As he hiked away, he heard repeated crashes as his wife slammed her car again and again into his.

Booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, Mrs. Smallfield admitted all, police said.

"But," she told officers, "you would have done the same thing yourselves."

Decisions Expected On Agriculture Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — This promises to be a week of possible agricultural aid programs.

Decisions are expected to be made by federal officials which would affect present programs, while actions taken by a farm organization conference may influence long-range government agricultural policies.

A government cotton production report to be issued Thursday will help determine how much of a boost Secretary of Agriculture Benson must make in the price support rate for this year's cotton crop.

The flexible price support system, which requires increases in support levels when supplies decline, will lift the cotton floor because exports are larger and crop prospects smaller than when Benson announced a tentative base rate of 28.15 cents a pound last winter. The Aug. 8 report will show just how much smaller the cotton crop will be.

Accuse Armed Services Of Money Waste

Makes Findings Public As Part Of House Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The armed services have been accused of getting away from military austerity and wasting money in building officers' quarters, barracks and other structures.

The charge was contained in a report by staff investigators for the House Appropriations Committee. The committee made public the investigators' findings yesterday as part of the record of hearings on defense financing.

The investigators said the Air Force wants to air-condition personnel quarters and to provide private baths.

They said the Air Force has designed officers' quarters "which are much more elaborate and expensive in layout and treatment than those previously constructed."

The Army and Navy also were included in the investigators' complaints concerning increased use of such features as brick facings, aluminum windows, fireplaces, maple dance floors and window canopies.

Neff died here June 8. He was 72.

Will Hear Ex-Union Organizer

Miller Will Get Chance to Refute Previous Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rackets Investigating Committee said today it will give a hearing to Marshall M. Miller, ousted New York legislative labor relations consultant, who has challenged testimony received by the committee about him.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) said he had a telegram from Miller asking opportunity to appear in rebuttal to John McNiff, executive secretary of the Assn. of Catholic Trade Unionists.

McClellan told reporters: "Miller will have a chance to be heard by our committee since his name was mentioned in derogatory fashion by another witness."

McNiff told the senators last week that Miller made collusive deals with employers while he was an organizer, some years ago for the Upholsters International Union. Miller denied this at a news conference yesterday, and said he was demanding a chance to testify.

The New York Joint Legislative Committee on Industrial and Labor Conditions dropped Miller as a consultant after McNiff's testimony about him.

McClellan said Miller complained in the telegram to him that he was "fired without a hearing" by the legislative committee.

"We didn't fire him," McClellan commented. "If he wants a hearing on that he should request a hearing by the New York committee." Miller said at his news conference that he had made such a request.

Sen. Ives (R-NY), vice chairman of the senate committee, said he is making an independent inquiry as to how Miller happened to have been employed by the New York legislative committee.

Ives headed the state committee from 1938 to 1946 in pre-senatorial days.

McClellan said he had had no request from Ned Grossberg, vice president of Century Products Works, Inc., New York, for opportunity to testify. Grossberg denied yesterday the accuracy of testimony given the senators last Friday about him.

To Break Law By March Into Testing Area

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP) — Eleven members of the Committee for Non-Violent Action Against Nuclear Weapons plan to break the law on purpose tomorrow by marching onto the atomic proving grounds here.

But they acknowledge their march may be halted short of criminal trespass by barbed wire and guards.

The committee members, who call themselves a civil disobedience team, want to stage a peaceful demonstration in protest against the continued testing of atomic devices. They regard such testing as immoral. Their action is timed to commemorate the 12th anniversary of the dropping of an atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

The team coordinator, Lawrence Scott of Chicago, said yesterday that a reconnaissance squad from his group went to Camp Mercury on the edge of the test site and found a "new barbed wire entanglement stretching out into the desert." He said the wire makes the gate to the camp the only possible point of entry.

"We do not expect the authorities to let us cross the line," he said, adding that his team would try it anyway.

"Early in the afternoon, as led by their consciences, members of the civil disobedience team will attempt entry," Scott said. "We will continue walking into the nuclear explosion area until arrested, but will stop when the arresting authority orders us to halt."

"We will attempt to talk to him. If it is not arrest, we will continue entry. If the arresting authorities engage in violence against us, or possible attempt to detain us without arrest, we will continue and act toward them in a spirit of love and non-violence."

Scott, 48, an ordained Baptist minister, said the team will begin a prayer vigil outside Camp Mercury about 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Arrested With $400 In Machine Tools

BOONVILLE (AP) — A man was arrested here Saturday with $400 of machine tools stolen in Jefferson City after he had been spotted on a freight train by a railroad teletypegrapher perched on a semaphore pole.

The highway patrol at Jefferson City had notified railroad officials that the suspect with the stolen tools was believed to be riding a westbound Missouri Pacific freight train.

At Sandy Hooks, 22 miles southeast of Boonville, the telegrapher, J. C. White, climbed the pole and surveyed the passing train. He spotted the man in a coal gondola and telephoned the car number to Boonville.

Troopers pulled the man from the car here and found the tools which were reported to have been stolen from the Eagan Machine Shop in Jefferson City. The man, Lester Daubemeyer, 61, Ashfork, Ariz., was held for investigation.

Asked if he would talk any politics, he just grinned and didn't answer.

The Nixon visit is generally regarded here as in the nature of a check on the California situation which will be of major importance to him in his expected bid for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination.

Nixon obviously expects Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) to announce this fall his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor of California next year. Knowland has scheduled a series of speeches in the state, beginning Labor Day, unless Congress is still in session then.

If Knowland takes on Gov. Goodwin J. Knight for the state office nomination, the move will be regarded as signaling Knowland's intention to bid for the GOP presidential nomination two years later.

Knowland has said he will not seek re-election to the Senate. Beyond saying that he will have an announcement after he returns to California, the Senate's Republican leader has kept his future plans to himself.

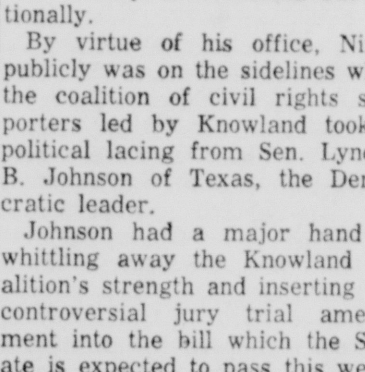

If Knowland and Knight tie into each other in the 1958 state primary, Nixon is expected to preserve a highly neutral role although he might benefit by the elimination of Knowland from the national picture in such a contest.

The identification of Knowland and Nixon with the civil rights controversy now under way in Congress has given each of them an issue they believe will be helpful not only in California but nationally.

By virtue of his office, Nixon publicly was on the sidelines when the coalition of civil rights supporters led by Knowland took a political lacing from Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader.

Johnson had a major hand in whittling away the Knowland coalition's strength and inserting the controversial jury trial amendment into the bill which the Senate is expected to pass this week.

Tito Returns From Meeting With Reds

Welcomes Leader From North Viet Nam for Five Days

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslav President Tito returned to Belgrade today from his secret meeting in Romania with Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

Tito came home just in time to welcome President Ho Chi Minh of Communist North Viet Nam, who arrived from Hungary for a five-day official visit. Thousands lined the streets as the two presidents drove together through the capital.

Experts on Yugoslav foreign relations meanwhile indicated that as a result of the Khrushchev-Tito meeting, the Yugoslav leader would spearhead a new Soviet-inspired drive to forge closer links with non-Communist socialist parties of the West.

Moscow radio described the meeting as the firming up of an agreement on "concrete forms of cooperation" between the Communist parties of Russia and Yugoslavia.

Experts here believe Khrushchev went further and agreed to a "new relationship" among Socialist parties of the world—non-Communist as well as Communist.

They said Khrushchev showed willingness to permit "a greater degree of freedom" for some East European countries and stressed his recognition of the Yugoslav Communist party's full independence from Moscow dictation.

The Tito-Khrushchev meeting was their first since the Soviet boss won his power struggle with Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov and other Soviet leaders. One of the counts against the Malenkov-Molotov group was they they opposed the reconciliation with Tito.

Observers here saw the new Khrushchev-Tito accord as a move by the Soviet party chief to ally suspicions held by foreign Socialist parties of the Kremlin.

They suggested Tito would occupy a "very important place" in the new setup on grounds that only he could bring the Socialists into the Soviet camp.

The new board, set up as part of a broad reorganization plan to put the state's mental health program on a professional basis, will succeed B.E. "Squire" Ragland, a patronage appointee who has served two terms.

The commission, in turn, will select a professional director to operate the division. It will be able to offer up to $25,000 a year to get an experienced man.

The governor said all the new board members have agreed to serve, they are:

The two lay members are former Sen. Francis Smith of St. Joseph, and Powell B. McHaney, St. Louis, who will serve a four-year term. McHaney is a former insurance executive, who will serve five years.

Smith formerly headed the state's "Little Hoover" Commission on governmental reorganization and was on the State Training School Board.

McHaney formerly was president of the University of Missouri Board of Curators, of which he is still a member, and has been active in many civic enterprises.

Board members will receive $25 a day when they are in session, plus expenses.

Try to Trace Union Charter's 'Getting Around'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate rackets investigators try to trace today how a union charter bounced about among what they called "a succession of favored individuals."

"We want to see how often it bounced and where it landed," Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) said, referring to a charter issued for New York Local 228 of the old United Automobile Workers.

McClellan is chairman of the special Senate committee now investigating improper labor-management practices in the New York City area.

The group has received testimony that racketeer Johnny Dio controlled some locals of the UAW which later changed its name to the Allied Industrial Workers Union, and of the Teamsters Union.

Family Suffers Injuries During Visits Here

Injuries have become a chain of events for the Elmer Morris family of Chicago, Ill., on their vacation visits to Sedalia. Every year since 1954 something has happened. In the latest mishap, their son Leroy Hornung, 11, suffered a cut on the right arm Sunday.

Leroy, who loves to visit with the firemen at Station No. 2 on South Kentucky, was playing when he threw his arm around Fireman Lloyd Gordy who was opening a package of cigarettes with a small knife. His arm struck the knife and a seven-inch cut resulted.

He was rushed to Bothwell Hospital by Assistant Chief Emmett Vaughn, where Dr. A. R. Maddox rendered emergency treatment, taking several stitches to close the wound.

It was a "double dose" for his sister, Kathleen, now nine years old. In 1954, when six years old, she was bitten in the face by a dog, then in 1955 she had one foot injured when she caught it in the spokes of a bicycle.

Then in 1956, Mrs. Morris, suffered a back injury in a fall.

And in 1957 Leroy gets an arm cut.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris, and children, who live in Chicago, are spending a few weeks visiting with Mr. Morris' mother, Mrs. Sue Morris, 234 South Kentucky.

Cattlemen of Six States Attend Holstein Sale

Dairy cattle breeders from six states and all sections of Missouri were in attendance at a sale of Holstein cattle at the Paul Selken Farms near Smithton Saturday afternoon. The sale started at noon and lasted most of the afternoon.

Highest sale was a six-month-old heifer calf that sold to William Hartke of Litchfield, Ill., for $1,100. The top female in milk sold to Liberty Home Farms of Lamonia, Ia., for $470 and the top yearling heifer sold to H. Dale Jones of Topeka for $600. In the sale of grade cattle following the purebred stock the top cow sold for $322.50 to Roy Dye of Holliday, Mo.

She was married to John D. Morgan in 1896. They resided near Tebbetts.

Survivors include: two daughters, Mrs. Alma Gathright, Kansas City, and Mrs. Thelma Heater, Colorado Springs, Colo.; one son, Ralph Morgan, 919 East Broadway, Sedalia; one sister, Mrs. Grace Aubuchon, Kansas City; and two granddaughters, one being Mrs. John Hays, of Sedalia.

Accidents

Floyd F. Anderson, 57, Kansas City, suffered minor hurts about 4:50 p. m. Sunday, when his motorcycle and a 1956 Chevrolet sedan driven by Miss Loretta Jean Burton, collided in front of her home, 1616 West Broadway.

Anderson was taken to Bothwell Hospital in a private automobile, where he was treated by Dr. A. L. Walter, for cuts on the nose and both legs.

According to the police investigation, Anderson was headed west on Broadway and Miss Burton east on Broadway and making a left turn into her driveway.

The motorcycle struck just back of the right door, skidded sideways against the car, and Anderson was thrown from his machine.

A wrecker from Parks Cities Service Station towed the motorcycle away.

Paul R. Erickson, 24, of 1300 South Ohio, suffered cuts about his head, hands, arms and knees, about 7 a. m. Monday, in a collision of two motorcycles on East Third at the MKT passenger depot.

Robert E. Paxton, 34, of 308 West Broadway, rider on the second motorcycle escaped with slight bruises on the right leg.

Erickson was taken to Bothwell Hospital in the Ewing ambulance, where his injuries were treated by Dr. A. L. Walter.

According to the report given the police by Paxton, he was riding west on Third on his machine and Erickson was following on his. He said he started to turn into the MKT driveway and Erickson was too close and hit his machine. Both were thrown from their machines.

Both motorcycles were damaged. Erickson and Paxton both work for the Sedalia fire department.

J. D. Smith, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, 1613 East Sixth, received a fracture of the right wrist when he fell from a picnic bench, Sunday.

He was taken to Bothwell Hospital by his father, where Dr. Stanley Fisher attended the child.

Two cars were damaged in a collision at Kentucky and 32nd about 1 p. m. Sunday, but the occupants escaped injury.

Involved was a 1953 Ford sedan driven north on Kentucky by Tommy R. Martin, 25, of 510 East 11th, and a 1950 Ford convertible driven east on 32nd by Jackie Lee Burlingame, 18, of 621 East 26th, when they collided.

Trooper Robert Stockdell, State Highway Patrol, investigated the accident. He reported Burlingame after the accident continued on Washington and turned north when a tire blew out and he swerved into a ditch on the west side of Washington.

He was given a Patrol summons to appear in magistrate court, according to Trooper Stockdell.

The left rear portion of the Martin car was damaged and the front end of the convertible damaged.

Sedalia Police Car No. 7, driven by Officer Jewell Riley, 522 West Saline, was damaged extensively about 3:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when it was reported to have been forced off the highway by a car driven by Burl Jones, Jr., 16, 508 West Jefferson. The accident occurred about 300 feet north of the junction of Cedar Drive and the Griessen Road.

Officer Riley reported he was driving west on Saline when he passed three cars being driven east at a fast rate of speed. He turned around and gave chase. At New York and Tower, he caught up with the first car driven by Wilson Curd and, with red light and siren, passed it, then overtook the 1955 Dodge driven by Burl Jones, and was alongside of it trying to overtake a 1949 Buick to get its license number, driven by Arthur Sims, when the Dodge pulled to the left.

Riley was forced off the road and his 1957 Chevrolet sedan swerved in the ditch and the right rear fender was extensively damaged.

Later it was learned who the driver of the Buick was and he was picked up and charged with careless driving, resisting arrest and leaving the scene of an accident.

Edwin Mathews, 1218 East Seventh, an employee in the reclamation plant of the Missouri Pacific Shops, suffered back and side injuries about noon Monday. Mathews, it was reported, fell from a scaffold to the ground a distance of approximately five feet.

He was rushed to Bothwell Hospital in the McLaughlin ambulance where X-ray pictures were taken of his hurts.

Dr. Robert Stewart, radiologist at the Bothwell, reported Mathews had suffered bruises about his sides and back but apparently no fractures. He is treated by Dr. W. A. Beckemeyer.

Demos Push Civil Rights Bill Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats in Congress put on pressure today to deliver to President Eisenhower for his acceptance or rejection a civil rights bill has criticized severely.

A high administration official said Eisenhower will veto the bill if it reaches him in the form in which the Senate is expected to pass it in the next day or two.

Democrats were publicly silent about this threat. But some of their leaders made it clear privately they are in the mood to give Eisenhower the opportunity to veto the first civil rights bill Congress thus would have passed in 30 years.

To do this, they would have to have help from Southern Democrats, who publicly are opposed to enactment of any civil rights bill. They might also need some Republican votes to get the House to accept the Senate's version.

No Southern Democrat would talk about it openly but several of them indicated they might go along on the double theory that they could get the bill killed by veto or — failing in that — they would be better off with the mild Senate version than some much stronger measure they might get in the next session of Congress.

On the other hand, House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts said during the weekend he expects the measure to go to a conference committee where he said it will be "dead for this session."

"That will put the whole civil rights fight over until next January when Congress reconvenes," he added.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) protested in a statement what he called the "premature burial" of the civil rights bill by some Republican leaders.

Both he and Sen. O'Mahoney said that with sincere efforts on the part of those administering it, the bill in its present form would represent an important advance in civil rights.

On Installment Buying..

If there are any groups which can be labeled vanishing Americans it would be those who have never participated in the universal American custom of installment buying.

At some time or another merchandise is bought in this manner. In fact installment credit is one of the most important assets a family can have. Used wisely, credit is a major tool that raises the family's standard of living and upgrades its financial position, according to the American Finance Corporation.

Of course, credit can be used unwisely and cause temporary hardship. So in the interest of obtaining maximum benefit from time buying, the following do's and don'ts are suggested by the Conference as a guide:

Don't make major purchases on impulse; don't shop for terms only; don't buy if you have to borrow the down payment; don't sign any blank contracts; don't over buy or take on too many payments simultaneously.

On the do side are the following:

Do consider major purchases carefully and then choose sound terms that will reduce finance charges and provide for full ownership of goods at the earliest possible time; do make a big enough down payment (cash or trade-in) to give you a worthwhile equity in your purchase; do consider the desirability of credit life, health and accident type of insurance that will pay up the sales contract in the event of the death or disability of the wage earner; do make sure the time sales contract is completely filled in to show the cash price value of any trade-in; coverage and cost of any insurance; amount and number of monthly payments, and the total time price you will pay; do keep credit purchases in line with your income; complete payment of one purchase before taking on another, except where the combined payments will not require too large a proportion of your monthly income.

Keeping a cash reserve fund for temporary emergencies or keeping installments paid up a month or two in advance to allow a 30-60 day pay suspension period in an emergency, may sound outrageous, but won't appear so when that emergency arrives.

Observance of these basic rules on time buying will enable consumers to buy wisely and enjoy major purchases while paying for them from current income.

There are many pitfalls to installment buying as older persons have learned by experience. Suggestions to guard against them are especially appropriate to younger people who can profit from what the old folks learned the hard way.

Senate Long On Wind, Short On Facts

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The Senate fight on civil rights has been long on wind and short on facts.

For four weeks the senators split legal hairs and congratulated one another on their high-level handling of the civil rights bill.

On some of the biggest issues the senators—on both sides—were badly informed.

For example: On the number of Negroes registered to vote in the South they had no official information; on the number of Negroes serving on federal juries in the South they had no information until the last moment.

And on one basic bit of information—the Justice Department—which was pushing the bill for the Eisenhower administration—fell flat on its face.

Last February the Senate Judiciary Committee asked the department for statistics going back to 1940 on all the civil rights complaints it had received and what happened to them.

The department answered (1) it didn't have sufficient records and (2) it couldn't get together the records it had in time to be included in the printed hearings of the committee before which Atty. Gen. Brownell had testified.

Take Negro voting in the South: There were no official records available on the number of would-be Negro voters registered in the South as a whole. The Southern Regional Council, a private organization, had made a Southwide survey of this in 1956.

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) put the council's figures in the Congressional Record. Southerners challenged them. The council, with headquarters in Atlanta, is made up of Negroes and whites to promote racial cooperation.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-Sc.), insinuating the council was left-wing, offered as proof that the council's figures couldn't be right this statement: Nobody in South Carolina knows how many Negroes were registered in 1956.

Why? Because until a law was passed this spring, registering would-be voters by race was neither practiced nor required.

At the start of the debate this writer—hoping to check official Southern registration figures state by state to check against the council's—called the office of Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), captain of the Southern anti-civil-rights fight.

His office had neither figures for Georgia nor those for the South as a whole.

The Democratic and Republican national committees, with headquarters in Washington, might be expected to be a primary source of information on voter registration, including Negroes, throughout the country.

This writer called both committees, asking the figures on Southern Negro registration. Both committees said the only figures they had on this were from the Southern Regional Council.

On the number of Negroes serving on federal juries in the South: There is no doubt some serve on those juries, but far fewer on state juries. How many serve on federal juries? And how many Negroes serve in proportion to the number of whites on federal juries? Nobody knows.

Supporters of an amendment to let Negroes serve on federal juries in the South—by bypassing state laws which might discriminate against them—at the last minute wired federal judges in the South for information.

Twenty-three answers were received. They were not announced in the Senate until a few hours—and in some cases a few minutes—before the vote on the amendment. Only one of the 23 judges gave figures. He said about 18 to 20 per cent of his jurors are Negroes.

The rest—with three exceptions—simply said Negroes serve or serve regularly. The three said a proportionate number of Negroes—compared with whites—serve.

The lack of this kind of information—about an amendment which was intended to remedy a situation on which no one had facts—was illustrated neatly by Sen. Eastland (D-Miss.), long-time foe of civil rights legislation.

He insisted Negroes serve in most of Mississippi's counties. Sen. Carroll (D-Colo.) asked him: How many counties? Eastland didn't know. Carroll asked him what percentage of Mississippi Negroes serve on juries. Eastland said: "I do not have any idea."

Some Sidelights On Hoffa Bribery Trial

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—The public doesn't yet know the half of what Jimmy Hoffa and his Teamster cohorts did to make sure he was acquitted in his recent bribery trial.

This column can now reveal that Hoffa's Michigan attorney, George S. Fitzgerald, Democratic politician and former candidate for lieutenant governor of Michigan, reached all the way to Hot Springs, Ark., to hire Q. Byrum Hurst, an Arkansas state senator, as one of the battery of Hoffa defense attorneys. This was in addition to reaching all the way to Los Angeles to hire a special Negro attorney, Mrs. Martha M. Jefferson, whose arrival in Washington was acclaimed by the Negro press.

There was a very good reason for hiring State Senator Q. Byrum Hurst. He is a boyhood friend of A. D. Shelton, city attorney of Hot Springs, who, in turn, is the brother of the U.S. district judge who presided over the Hoffa trial, Burnita Shelton Matthews.

Reached on the telephone in Hot Springs, Shelton was quite frank.

"I've known Hurst since he was 15 years old. He's state senator and I am city attorney. We voted for each other."

"Didn't he talk to you about the Hoffa case?"

"Yes, he talked to me about it."

"Isn't it true that you talked to your sister about the case?"

"I would rather not make any comment."

"Isn't it true you came to Washington during the trial?"

"No," replied Shelton. "I did not come during the trial, but I do come to Washington quite frequently."

"Did you come shortly before the trial?"

"Yes, I came in May."

"Didn't you see your sister then?"

"Yes."

"Didn't you talk to your sister about the case at that time?"

"I would rather not comment."

It was also learned that State Senator Q. Byrum Hurst came to Washington at about the same time and remained in Washington to work on the Hoffa case.

Hoffa's retention of the state senator from Arkansas was in addition to his arrangement with ex-heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis to come to Washington from Chicago and appear in the courtroom two days; also in addition to a highly prejudiced and inflammatory full-page ad signed by a fictitious name, which ran in the Afro-American at the height of the Hoffa trial. The ad was obviously aimed to influence the eight Negro members of the jury.

Guest Editorial--

WARRENSBURG STAR-JOURNAL: Christmas In July. The mercury stood at 94 degrees on the recent July day when the four protestant churches of Vicksburg, Mich., had special Christmas services. The churches were decorated with Christmas trees and candles; Christmas carols were sung; the ministers delivered sermons on the age-old theme of Christ's birth and its meaning for the world.

On first thought this may seem like a rather curious way to celebrate Christmas. However, there is much to be said for the thinking that led to these summer services. This commemoration of the Saviour's birth had no commercial overtones. The minds of those who participated in the services were presumably fixed on the religious message of the occasion, and not wandering off to speculate on a variety of holiday festivities.

The celebration of Christmas in summer is not likely to become a general custom. But Vicksburg's Christmas in July is something the rest of us might do well to remember at year's end when the usual holiday hullabaloo threatens to engulf us.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

By Jack L. Simion
Jefferson City Correspondent

Legal Doubts Exist On State Succession Law

The illness of Gov. James T. Blair has led to considerable speculation as to the adequacy of the constitutional provision for the succession of the office.

The constitution provides that in the case of absence from the state, death, impeachment, resignation "or other disability" of the governor, the lieutenant governor shall take over the office.

Lt. Gov. Edward V. Long, now acting governor, commented that the constitution is not clear as to what constitutes the disability of the governor or who determines it. Long's present tenure as acting governor obviously follows the law since Gov. Blair is actually out of the state.

However, if Blair were in the state but not able to take over his duties as governor because of illness, there would be some question as to whether and when the lieutenant governor could take over.

Could the governor himself declare that he was disabled and not able to do his job? Or should a group of legislative leaders and state elective officials declare officially that the lieutenant governor should take over as acting governor?

Lt. Gov. Long frankly states that he doesn't know. It's doubtful if anyone knows. Long said he didn't believe anything would ever be done to clarify the constitution.

al succession law. So, until the situation arises, no full decision will be made.

Test Case Possible On Drivers License Law

A revoked driver's license in Clinton county may result in a test case on a controversial feature of the state drivers' license law.

Milton Carpenter, state director of revenue, said the license of a Lathrop, Mo., man was revoked after the man had been re-examined for a license following complaints about his driving. As a result, Carpenter said the case may be appealed to circuit court.

The provision of the state driver's license law which permits drivers to be called in for a re-examination for a license because of complaints about their driving has been highly controversial—especially in the House of Representatives.

During consideration of a driver's license bill during the last legislative session, a number of house members voted to repeal the re-examination provision. One of the opponents of the section, Rep. Elum Bruffett (R-Ozark county), termed it "a blast at our elderly citizens." However, the bill containing the repealer clause failed to pass in the closing hours of the session.

H. J. Turnbull, director of the state drivers' license division said he had received several letters from an attorney representing the Lathrop man. He said he had not received definite word that an appeal had been filed.

No Back-Patting Likely

Congress Adjournment Will Be 'Around Labor Day'

By Esther Van Wagoner Tuffy
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Congress is rapidly concluding its work under the pressure of a hot and humid Washington summer. No one knows the definite adjournment date as yet but the usual betting that goes on about this time favors "around Labor Day."

Congressmen will not go home patting themselves on the back, because this first session will probably be characterized as the Congress of "little accomplishment." The most notable achievement seems to be the response to the public demand for economy in government. Appropriation bills approved by the House of Representatives, so far, have resulted in reduction of some $3 billion in the President's budget.

Aside from the passage of routine money bills and the President's Middle East resolution, little major legislation has been passed. The Civil Rights bill is still bogged down in the Senate and, if finally enacted, will probably be watered down considerably from the House version. Last minute legislation, perhaps immigration proposals, may get action.

Why this "little accomplishment" record? It wasn't because many bills (11,644 to date) were not introduced. Maybe the Congress, always sensitive to prevailing sentiment, reflects the widespread feeling of well-being and "don't rock the boat" during a time of no-war and prosperity (at least for many). Then, there is always the second session coming up so controversial issues, which take more debate-time, can be postponed. Anyway, if there is to be a tax cut let it come in an election year. That's the political approach, with each party already maneuvering to grab the credit.

Wherever we live, we must find salvation and God's will for us on a personal basis. God deals with individuals everywhere regardless of the size of the town.

Next Two Months Are Fair Time

Following Rules, Produce Selection Important Points

By Arthur E. Gaus
Extension Horticulturist
University of Missouri

During August and September, many folks — 4-H boys and girls, many farm women who are really the gardeners in most farm families, and a number of the men-folks who are hobby gardeners — will be displaying garden produce at fairs throughout the state.

Of course the big fair is the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia beginning Aug. 17. But there are numerous other fairs throughout the state, ranging from district fairs to local fairs.

Interest runs high at these fairs and it rightly should as any fair provides a wealth of entertainment and education. How many of us aren't captivated in some way by the sound of the merry-go-round, or the height of the ferris wheel, or the attractiveness of the exhibits, or the decision of the judge? How many of us haven't learned something new either in preparing fair exhibits or in viewing new things while at the fair?

That's why fairs are so popular and that's why all over the state in the next two months you will be hearing the cry "Let's go to the fair!"

Now, I'd like to talk a little about preparing vegetables for exhibit at the fair. First of all, read your fair book carefully for the rules and regulations which govern the exhibiting of your garden produce. Follow these rules and regulations carefully.

The first thing to remember is to enter the exact number of vegetables in a class as is called for. If the fair book calls for 11 sweet potatoes, this means 11, not 10, or nine, or some other number. To exhibit some number other than that specified is grounds for disqualification.

Secondly, strive for the best quality you can obtain out of your garden. The produce should be well developed up to the best eating stage and of the proper color.

Third, you should select those vegetables which have an attractive appearance, are free from disease and insect damage, free from mechanical injury or growth, and other defects.

Fourth, exhibit vegetables which are of average size for the vegetable. Small specimens may be too young or stunted, whereas extra large ones may be coarse or freaks. So, except where you have a class, such as watermelons or pumpkins, which specifically calls for the largest, exhibit only those vegetables of average or marketable size.

The fifth suggestion for selecting vegetables for exhibit is to obtain uniformity in size and shape. If a plate of five tomatoes is called for, exhibit five tomatoes which are as near alike as possible in size, shape, and color. Every specimen of the sample should be the duplicate of the others. "Alike as two peas in a pod" is a good criterion to go by.

Last, but not least, take some extra vegetables along in case some get damaged. This is particularly true of tomatoes, but might equally apply to other vegetables. It's rather disheartening to bring five perfect specimens of tomatoes, which you know will win first prize, drop one, and then have no replacements. It's been done before — don't let it happen to you.

Make Progress In Eradicating State Brucellosis

Remarkable progress has been made during the past few years in eradicating brucellosis in Missouri. An even faster tempo is expected in this program during the months ahead.

Back in 1953, fewer than 100,000 head of cattle were tested in Missouri. Brucellosis showed up in 18 per cent of the herds. Last year, nearly one million were tested in the state and less than ten per cent of the herds reacted. The per cent of individual animals were also declined significantly.

Four years ago, less than six per cent of the infected animals were being slaughtered. Now it's practically 100 per cent.

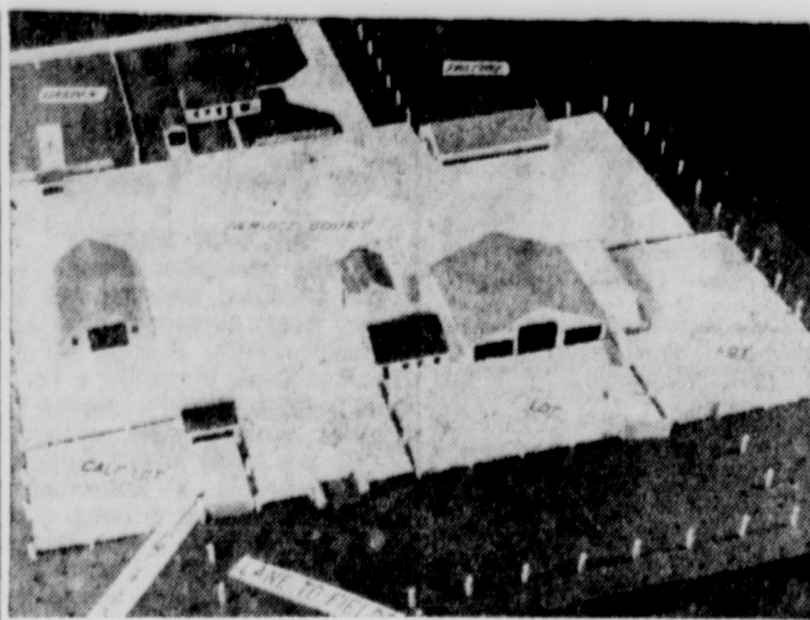

These figures were reviewed recently by the state livestock disease control committee. Committee plans for the months ahead call for an even greater effort to eradicate the disease in this state.

State and federal veterinarians expect to start testing this year in all counties where the program has advanced to that stage. The Missouri legislature appropriated one million dollars to carry on this work in 1957. Slightly more than this amount is expected from federal appropriations.

Currently, testing is in progress in 28 counties. Five counties — Christian, Jefferson, Riley, Lawrence and Jasper — say they are ready to be certified as "modified certified brucellosis free areas."

In another 23 counties, petitions have been completed but testing work has not yet started. Twenty-two counties are circulating petitions. And 26 other counties have said they are interested in getting started on the program.

Early Plowing Helps Seeding Of Pastures

By BILL MURPHY
MU Extension Field Crops Specialist

If we are going to provide the best chance for those improved permanent pasture seedings that we plan to make in late summer and early fall, it's time to be making preparations.

Experiments and farmer experience have shown that these pasture seedings have the best chance when the land is plowed early. This gives the soil a chance to settle and also to build up a reserve of moisture. And, of course, time and basic applications of fertilizer are best spread before the plowing is done. So, if the soil test to guide these applications has not already been made, it needs to be done right now.

After plowing, handle your field to develop a firm seedbed. Disking as needed to control weeds between now and planting time can leave a minimum amount of work to be done just ahead of seeding.

Then, be prepared for timely seeding — preferably from about Aug. 20 to Sept. 1. Make every effort to get seedlings made before Sept. 15 so they will have enough time to get well established before winter.

To be prepared:

1. Obtain seed of good quality.
2. Have starter fertilizer on hand.

3. Make sure your seeding machinery is in repair.
4. Investigate the possibility of putting a band seeding attachment on the grass seeder of your grain drill. This method of seeding helps give better stands and a faster start.

Nobody knows what the weather will be but conditions look more favorable for getting stands of fall seedlings than for the past several years.

Extension Specialists Will Hold District Meetings in October

A series of 12 district poultry meetings will be held in Missouri during October. University of Missouri extension poultry specialists say these district meetings will replace the many individual county meetings that have been held in past years.

These district poultry meetings will be open to all poultry producers, hatcherymen, egg buyers, feed dealers, and processors. County extension agents will soon have more information about the specific program. The nearest meeting to Pettis County will be at Warrensburg on Oct. 14.

Mix Nutrients 7-10 Inches Of Top Soil

By MARSHALL CHRISTY
MU Extension Soils Specialist

Plant nutrients used in proper amounts are most effective when well mixed with seven to ten inches of the top soil.

The roots of most crops extend at least seven to ten inches into the soil. Some crops have roots going much deeper provided essential plant nutrients are present and fairly well distributed in the soil. This vertical distribution can be accomplished best with good plowing when basic or corrective mineral treatments of lime, phosphate, and potash are applied. Plowing seven to ten inches deep will put a part of the various applied soil treatments at a satisfactory depth to encourage deeper rooting. Thus, drought damage may not be so severe as better use can be made of available moisture.

Too often it has been assumed that it is sufficient to apply lime, phosphate, and potash to the surface just before the finishing touches are made to the seedbed. Numerous field soil tests to determine the lime and phosphate situation show these materials stay "put" close to the depth where applied. Lime and phosphate applied on the surface after plowing are still located on the surface several years later. Disking and other operations often fail to work lime and phosphate down to a satisfactory depth in the soil.

Corrective soil treatments, guided by soil tests and thoroughly mixed in the entire plow depth, promote both primary and fibrous root growth. Untreated areas in the soil discourage root development. Evidence can frequently be seen with roots that flatten out and become small and threadlike at relatively shallow depths just on top of the zone where deficiencies exist. This is sometimes only four or five inches beneath the surface of the soil. In contrast, vigorous heavy roots may be found at 12 to 18 inches or more of depth where adequate plant nutrients have been plowed down deeply.

Field soil tests indicate that lime and phosphate are plowed down quite shallow. Under such conditions the materials are often layered at three to five inches deep with a very deficient area below. Corrective steps can be made in plow depth adjustment as a result of occasionally measuring furrow depth while plowing.

Plant nutrients will become better distributed through the soil after repeated plowing and other tillage operations during the rotation.

Take Representative Soil Samples

We are approaching the time of year when soil samples will start coming to the testing laboratory in increasing numbers. This will be specially true when we get some more rain so the ground can be more easily broken.

As plowing starts, folks will be reminded that they wanted to plow some rock phosphate. They will go out to take a soil sample and may not be too careful how they take it. We had such a sample come to the laboratory recently. The man had just picked up a handful of soil several places in a plowed field.

Unless we get a representative sample the resulting test may not be representative of the field. By representative samples we mean a composite sample taken seven or eight places in a field. Each sample taken to make up that composite sample should represent the soil in that area from the top down to seven inches deep.

The sample is frequently taken with a spade. A "V" shaped hole is made about seven inches deep. Then a narrow slice is shaved from one side of the hole and placed in a clean bucket. Each sample taken should be about the same size. When the seven or eight are collected from a field they should be pulverized, well mixed, dried if necessary but not on or in a stove, and then about a cupful brought to the local soil testing laboratory.

A brace and bit, a wood auger or a soil tube may also be used to take the samples. With a tube, at this time of the year, the sampler will frequently need to select a crack in the earth and push the tube into the ground there.

Advise Checking Temperature of Water

If your poultry flock drops off in water consumption during hot weather, extension poultry specialists say you might check the temperature of your water. If water goes a long way in an above ground pipe, it may be pretty hot when it gets to the fountain.

Crop yields frequently are better two or three years after corrective treatments are applied and become better distributed. Some soils, because of physical conditions, cannot be plowed. But, still pays to correct deficiencies and work treatments in with tillage operations that can be done.

Cards Split With Phils; Still Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cardinals split with Philadelphia yesterday in a double-header but the first game loss undoubtedly left a bitter memory with the Red Birds and a Busch Stadium crowd of 29,098.

In the opener, eventually lost 5-4 in twelve innings. The Cards held a 4-3 lead with two out in the ninth.

Then rookie Harry Anderson tagged Larry Jackson for a home run and sent the game into extra innings.

In the fatal 12th — again with two out — Roy Smalley and Ed Bouchee singled and Stan Lopata walked to soak the sacks. On a 3-1 pitch, Jackson walked Rip Repulski with the winning run.

Harvey Haddix, a former Cardinal as is Repulski, twirled six-plus innings of splendid relief, fanning 10 and surrendering one hit. Haddix is now 9-8, Jackson 12-16.

The Cards hold first place today by a half-game over Milwaukee because of Lindy McDaniel's clutch hurling in the 4-1 nightcap.

McDaniel, notching his ninth victory in 15 decisions, was touched for nine hits but was master when necessary.

A throwing error by Granny Hamner in the eighth inning fetched home two Cardinals and padded a 2-1 lead to 4-1.

The first game ended Wally Moon's hitting streak at 20 games and the Cards' victory string at eight games.

Pitcher McDaniel hit what may have been the shortest double in baseball history in the second game. He popped a fly in front of the plate and reached second as third baseman Jones rushed in from third base, shouted his catcher away from the ball and barely got his glove on it.

The Cards are idle today and await the start of a three-game home series tomorrow night against the Chicago Cubs.

At Baltimore, the A's ran into Billy Loes and lost, 5-0.

Loes, a refugee from the Brooklyn Dodgers, let the A's down on five hits. He fanned eight and walked none in picking up his 11th victory in 17 decisions.

The A's have now bowed to Loes five times this year.

Arnold Portocarrero and Ralph Terry hurled for the losers with starter Portocarrero given the loss.

Billy Martin was the only man to solve Loes' serves for more than one hit. Bill got a double and a single.

State Wool Contest Will Be Held in Kansas City

There are changes in the "Make It Yourself With Wool" contests this year. The state contest that has always been held in Sedalia will this year be held in Kansas City, Oct. 19 to 23, at the time of the American Royal and the national contest which was to have been held in Salt Lake City, Utah, will be held at Phoenix, Ariz., instead.

The preliminary contests will be held in each district and the place of the Sedalia District contest will not be changed. It will be held this fall in Sedalia.

Every year since Missouri has participated in the "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest Sedalia has had the state winner in the senior division, except the first year, which is 1953.

The second year of the contest Charlotte Houston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Houston, 1601 West 14th, won the district contest, then the state contest and went on to the national contest where she didn't quite win the national championship but did win first prize in the contest, a scholarship and other prizes. That was 1954.

In 1955 the state winner was Elinor Van Dyke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Dyke, Smith-ton, and Elinor had a nice trip to the national contest and won some woolen material.

When it came to the 1956 contest a girl from the Columbia district won the state contest and a trip to the national contest, but Sedalians weren't a bit unhappy about it. After all, she was a Sedalia girl, too, Mary Lou Mitchell, the daughter of Mrs. Clayton Mitchell, 1101 West 16th, who entered the contest at Columbia because she was a student at Missouri University. So Mary Lou was honored by being "Wool Queen of Missouri" and as state champion also competed in the national contest.

It is time for girls to be getting entries ready again for the district contest of which Mrs. Frank Van Dyke of Smithton is director. Every girl 13 through 22 years is eligible to compete for prizes. The junior division includes girls from 14 to 17 years of age and the senior division 17 to 22. The winners in these divisions will then compete in the state contest and there is no reason why just because the contest is moved to Kansas City that a Sedalia girl can't be the winner this year again and have a trip to Phoenix. The 13 to 14 age group will compete only in the district contest.

Information concerning the contest may be obtained from Mrs. Frank Van Dyke, Smithton, and any girl interested in the contest is asked to contact her.

The "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest offers $45,000 in prizes and for the national championship winners in both the junior and senior classes, two weeks trip to London, Rome and Paris, by air, all expenses paid.

The union men, working with materials furnished by the Red Cross, plan to build 25 homes during the weekend building bees. Each crew is a self-contained unit of 35-50 men complete with carpenters, electricians, plumbers and other specialists.

The crews spent Saturday night in National Guard tents and were fed by a Red Cross mobile kitchen unit. The Red Cross also supplied furnishings for the completed homes.

Many of the homesteads were surrounded by debris from the hurricane.

Actor Jenkins Faces Court Arraignment

MALIBU, Calif. (AP)—Actor Allen Jenkins faces a Municipal Court arraignment on a drunk driving charge today—and this time he can't say his pet cat was driving.

The cat, Smiley, wasn't along when Jenkins was arrested yesterday. The California highway patrol said the 57-year-old actor backed his car out of the driveway of a Malibu Beach home and collided with an oncoming car.

Nine years ago, after he was picked up on a similar charge, Jenkins told police Smiley the cat was driving while he lounged in the back seat. Later he indicated he was kidding and said he would "take the rap for the cat" in a jury trial. He was acquitted.

Fat Causes Failure Of Prisoner Escape

SJACKSON, Mich. (AP)—A freedom bid by two Southern Michigan Prison inmates failed because one was too fat.

Robert E. Crouse, 23, and Cleatus R. McKeon, 24, tried to escape from the world's largest walled prison yesterday by crawling out through a narrow pipe hole in the basement wall. McKeon made it, but Crouse got stuck halfway. His yells for help brought guards running.

Religion by Sensation

CHICAGO (AP)—Religious movements communicate their ideas in the language of sensation, Dr. Ira A. De Augustine Reid, sociology professor at Harvard, Pa., college, told a Disciples of Christ executive meeting here.

By the "light of symbols of religion," he said, believers "enter into darkness of social problems. The symbols are not the knowledge of reason. They are those of belief. The symbols tell us nothing, but they inspire and inspire us. We believe in them at our own risks. We know this and we are not afraid."

One Dog Leaves But 16 Arrive By Plane

BALTIMORE (AP)—When Raffles, an overgrown fox terrier, left Houston, Tex., by plane Saturday, she knew she was in a family way. So did the pilot of the freight plane.

But neither the pilot, Capt. Peter Kooyenga, nor Raffles knew what was to come.

Raffles had to change planes in Chicago and that's where she gave birth to eight pups.

Between Chicago and Baltimore, Raffles produced seven more pups—a grand total of 15. All were doing nicely when the plane landed last night.

Slick Airways notified the Baltimore consignee, Dr. William C. Brown, to expect not one fox terrier, but 16. It said there would be no extra charge.

Rites Are Conducted For Airliner Victim

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Last rites were conducted yesterday for Saul F. Binstock, victim of a mysterious explosion aboard a Las Vegas, Nev., to Los Angeles airliner July 25. He will be buried at Pittsburgh, Pa.

The 62-year-old retired jeweler was in the plane's lavatory when a blast tore open a large hole in the fuselage. His body was found in a desolate area near Daggett, Calif.

Ask for Floodlighted Beach in California

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—People who work all day should be able to go to the beach at night, says D. Paalen. And he's going to try to do something about it.

Ahern, who works all day as a city councilman, is going to ask the Council to install floodlights along a nine-mile stretch of beach and keep them on until midnight.

"We forget that the waves keep pounding against the sand all night long," said Ahern. "We're allowing our prime recreational asset to become obliterated at sundown."

Ousted Relations Consultant Demands Senate Hearing

NEW YORK (AP)—Marshall M. Miller, ousted New York legislative labor relations consultant, is demanding a hearing before U.S. Senate probers to answer testimony against him.

Miller also is seeking a hearing before the New York Joint Legislative Committee on Industrial and Labor Conditions, which has dropped him as a consultant.

Miller, who called a news conference yesterday, denied he made collusive deals with employers while he was an organizer for the Upholsterers International Union. He challenged testimony given before the Senate Rackets Committee Friday by John McNiff, executive secretary of the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists.

Another denial of testimony before the committee Friday was made yesterday by Ned Grossberg, vice president of the Century Products Works, Inc., New York City.

Bertha Nunez, a native of Honduras, told the Senate probers that the Century firm was linked to a deal with a union local run by labor racketeer John (Johnny Dio) Dioguardi. The witness was an employee of the firm. The Senate committee, headed by Sen. John McClellan (D-Ark), was told that under the alleged deal with the union, employers enjoyed a low-pay contract while legitimate unions were kept out.

Peter M. McGavin, an assistant to AFL-CIO President George Meany, said he would head a concerted drive against labor racketeers. The main target is racket-run unions that make deals with employers at the expense of the workers.

Discharge of Miller as a consultant to the joint committee of the Republican-controlled Legislature was announced Saturday by the chairman, Assemblyman John L. Ostrander, Saratoga County Republican. The testimony in Washington was given as the reason.

Jap Court Acquits Airmen of Murder

Kisarazu, Japan (AP)—A Japanese District Court today acquitted Airmen I.C. Benjamin B. Owyang of Sacramento, Calif., of a murder charge resulting from the death of a Japanese man in a scuffle.

Judge Seisaburo Furukawa ruled that the prosecution's evidence was inadequate.

Testimony during the trial brought out that last Jan. 9 Owyang was riding a bicycle through Kizarazu and became involved in an argument with three young Japanese men.

Walter George Dies From Heart Ailment

VIENNA, Ga. (AP)—Walter Franklin George, diplomat, former senator and for many years one of the most widely respected men in government, died yesterday of heart disease at his home. He was 79.

The elderly statesman was President Eisenhower's special ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization when his death at 1:52 a.m. ended a career admired alike by Republicans and members of his own Democratic party.

He passed away quietly in his sleep at the White frame house in this south central Georgia town, 2,000 where he first started practicing law 56 years ago.

Funeral services were set for 4 p.m. today in the red brick First Baptist Church where he often worshipped. He will be buried in Vienna Cemetery a mile from town.

In Washington, the Senate planned to meet only briefly and recess out of respect for the courtly Southerner.

During his 34 years in the Senate, George twice was chairman of the powerful Foreign Relations Committee. He did much to develop a strong bipartisan foreign policy.

President Eisenhower said in a statement that George's death was "a great loss not only to his native state of Georgia but also to the entire nation."

The President designated Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, to represent him at the funeral. A number of senators and representatives also were expected to attend.

George had been gravely ill since last Sunday. He rallied occasionally and remained conscious until the last two days.

His wife, the former Lucy Heard, his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Heard George, and his two physicians were in the room at the time.

George retired from the Senate last Jan. 3 after Herman E. Talmadge was elected to the seat. He had said he would run in May 1956, but withdrew reluctantly rather than carry on a strenuous campaign. His doctors spoke of health reasons at that time.

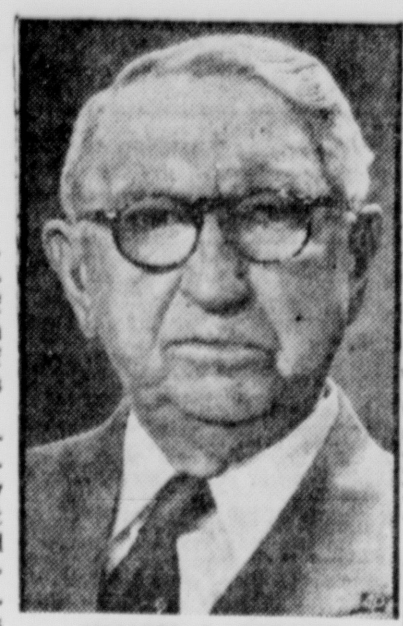

Later George accepted the President's appointment as special ambassador to NATO and spent some time in Europe.

In April he began suffering chest pains and a shortness of breath attributed to heart disease. On June 12 he entered Emory University Hospital in Atlanta and 12 days later went to Vienna, where he remained under doctor's care.

George was known as a conservative in domestic affairs but recognized as an internationalist in foreign matters. In addition to his important work on the Foreign Relations Committee, he served as chairman of the tax-writing Finance Committee during the World War II and Korean War years of record spending and high taxes.

He first was elected to the Senate in 1922 and only once faced major opposition. That was in 1938 when President Roosevelt, at odds with George over the New Deal, tried to "purge" him in favor of Lawrence Camp.

George accepted the challenge and defeated Eugene Talmadge, father of the present senator. Camp ran a poor third.

A few years later Roosevelt depended heavily on George for support of his lend-lease aid program to England and France.

George was born near Preston, Ga., and early planned to be a dentist. But his tenant farmer father regularly received the Congressional Record and George found himself turning to it more and more for reading matter.

He possessed a great natural talent as an orator and while at Mercer University at Macon, Ga., he won the oratorical medal four straight years. In 1947, the university named its law school after him.

He recalled later that one of his first public speeches was made from the back of a somewhat ancient mule when he rode into Preston. A pretty girl in the town saw him and laughed.

"This mule of mine is a worthy burden-bearer on our farm," he said. "He does his work most uncomplainingly. To laugh at me, miss, is a reflection cast upon this good animal."

The girl reddened and turned away. George rode off to get on with a career that carried him a long, long way from the back of a mule.

Officers first received a 15-pound turtle which a resident of the area found on his lawn. Next came a white goat which some boys found wandering about the street. Last were three stray dogs.

The turtle went to the Detroit Zoo. The dogs and goat are slated for the dog pound.

Inmate Council Makes Apology For Prison Riot

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP)—The inmates' advisory council of the Utah State Prison publicly apologized yesterday for a group of prisoners who held 20 hostages in Friday night's riot.

Today, 16 inmates will face a board of inquiry into the riot at the state institution 20 miles south of Salt Lake City.

Last Feb. 6, 500 prisoners rioted at the compound for 12 hours. Fourteen of the 20 hostages in the recent outbreak were members of the Kitchen Rythmettes, a women's novelty band from Price, Utah. The riot started near the end of a variety show presented by the band.

A letter from the inmates was addressed to "the Kitchen Rythmettes, our many friends and people of the State of Utah." It read in part:

"We the inmates of the Utah State Prison are without adequate words to express our deep regret and sincere apologies for the indignities which you were subjected to on the evening of Aug. 2, 1957.

"The conduct of those few responsible was degrading in character and shamefully inexcusable. Such actions do not reflect the

Cool Air Blankets Portion of Country

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fair weather with seasonably cool temperatures prevailed over almost all of the eastern half of the country today while scattered thundershowers and somewhat higher readings were expected in many Western sections.

The cool air blanketed all of the East except the Gulf Coast and southern Texas, where it continued hot and humid.

Western portions of the Plains states looked for warmer weather along with scattered thundershowers.

Thundershowers also were forecast for the Rocky Mountains, Plateau states and the Pacific Northwest.

Temperatures ranged in the 40s in the northern Great Lakes early today to near 70 on the leading edge of the cool Canadian air mass which holds sway over most of the East.

The letter went on to thank the women's novelty band for presenting their show at the prison.

Medical Science Still Seeks Answer To Hives

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Of all the allergies, hives, or urticaria, is probably the most perplexing.

It is frequently impossible to find the cause and it is too often impossible to effect a cure. Furthermore, an attack may come on suddenly, not only without apparent cause, but leave without any treatment at all and never occur again.

As a rule, urticaria is characterized by the appearance on the skin of reddish, swollen spots measuring half an inch or more across which itch intensely. They may appear almost anywhere on the skin and may last for only a few hours and then disappear without apparent reason or may last for days or even weeks. Certainly there is no single "cause" since urticaria can develop from a great many different things. Therefore, in a way, it is not proper to call it a disease.

Apparently there is some special quality about the person who has urticaria which makes it possible. For example, most of us can eat strawberries without developing hives, but a few break out with hives if they eat even a single berry.

Urticaria can follow swallowing almost any food or drug. It often appears as the result of infection, heat, furs or insect-bites. Curiously enough, most patients with hives do not show a skin reaction when given the skin tests with the offending agent. This is difficult to explain and, of course, has made identification of the cause in many cases of obscure origin extremely difficult.

An effort should always be made to find the cause. If this can be done, avoidance of the offending substance will usually cause the urticaria to disappear. Shunning it in the future usually prevents its reappearance.

Medical treatment is often disappointing. There is nothing which can be put on the surface of the skin to make the hives disappear, although the itching often can be partly relieved.

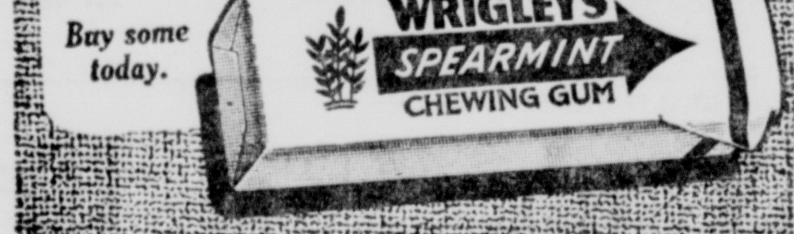

Epinephrine or adrenalin (useful in some allergies) has proved disappointing.

The drugs known as antihistamines, of which there are several kinds on the market, however, often prove helpful. When properly used they may relieve the symptoms for hours though they do not cure the underlying cause. The kind of urticaria which is chronic is particularly difficult to treat and is a trial to both patient and physician.

Many insects
Insects may be found almost anywhere and everywhere. The number of species of insects is far more numerous than that of all the other animals taken together.

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:
That counting sheep is more likely to keep you awake than put you to sleep...because it stirs your visual imagination.
That the suicide rate is lower among fat people.
That if you're superstitious, cheer up...Horatio Alger was born on Friday the 13th.
That the Canadian navy still serves a rum ration...And that a U. S. sailor can be refused re-employment if he has a nude lady tattooed on a portion of his body that meets the public eye.
That comedian Will Jordan tells the henpecked weatherman who thus described his wife's vocal powers: "She talks 130 words a minute with gusts up to 175."
That Tommy Manville, who has been married 10 times, can name his wives in alphabetical order in four seconds flat.
That a reader reports overhearing this remark in Tavern-on-the-Green in Central Park: "He was a four - letter man at Yale—D—U—M—B."
That the motto of the U. S. post office isn't an eye for an eye but "a pen for a pen"... If you steal one of its 15-cent ballpoints, you can be fined $500 and put in to the clink for three years.
That some colleges now teach you how to find gold... A thousand persons a year take prospecting courses from the University of Alaska extension service.
That in the normal man the fat content of his body weighs about one tenth of his muscles... And this sure is the worst news I've heard all year.
That the Press Box restaurant on E. 4th St. has a sign saying, "Our steaks are so tender we're amazed that the steers ever held together."
That you're a real pre-atomic oldtimer if you can remember when "fall out" was a welcome Army term.
That in Australia the expression "left off" has the same meaning as "second-hand" does here... Sample newspaper ad Down Under "Mrs. Smith has left off clothing of every description."

That Michelangelo lay on his back most of the four years it took him to paint his masterpiece on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel in Rome. But how long could you lie down on your job and get away with it?
That you will get more juice from your oranges if you squeeze them at room temperature or warmer.
That if you're wondering why motorcycles make so much noise, you might be interested to know that it's chiefly because the people who ride them won't buy a quiet one.
That Robert Q. Lewis tells of the two caterpillars watching a large butterfly flitting overhead... "Well," remarked one sourly, "you'll never catch me up in one of those things."
That a 10th century Persian poet named Rudagi, who was blind from childhood, wrote a poem 100 volumes long praising the delights of wine... at a gulp a line. Will no one do the same for soda pop?
That Julie Newmar of the "Lil Abner" cast has a wonderful way to beat the heat at night... She keeps her bed sheets cooling during the day in a home freezer.
That it was Abraham Lincoln who observed, "The man who only does what he is paid to do is not worth what he gets."

MoPac Women's Club Elects New Officers
Mrs. O. C. Blankenship has been elected president of the Missouri Pacific Women's Club. Other officers are: first vice-president, Mrs. Joe Payne; second vice-president, Mrs. J. R. Hunt; secretary, Mrs. William H. Schutt; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Rouchka and parliamentarian, Mrs. W. P. Tucker. The new officers will be installed in September.
The July project for the club was an ice cream social on the Court House parking lot, and the proceeds will go to the local Crippled Childrens Center. Proceeds were approximately $170.
In July, too, the club also participated in the Sidewalk Bazaar having a Curio Shop, which provided a lot of amusement as well as added a nice sum to the treasury. Along with white elephant items the club sold old hats for 15 cents or a quarter and had dozens of them, all colors, shapes and sizes, selling all of them. Mrs. William Schutt had charge of the booth and those assisting were Mrs. Mary Ellis, Mrs. W. H. Harms, Mrs. W. M. Anderson, Mrs. Herbert Shepherd, Mrs. J. R. Hunt, Mrs. J. C. Saunders, Mrs. Clara Miller, Mrs. A. O. Grishkat, Mrs. Troy Teeter, Mrs. James Farley and Mrs. Murrell Hayden.
Mrs. John T. White, president, presided over the meeting and thanked all who assisted at and donated to both the booth and the ice cream social.

NEWSPAPERS HAVE THE LEADING ROLE IN SALES PROMOTIONAL EFFORTS

TAKE FOR EXAMPLE

THE CASE OF SEARS' —

Sears, Roebuck & Co. invested a record-breaking $45.4 million in newspaper advertising for 1956, reports Editor & Publisher. The 1956 total marks the 11th consecutive year of record newspaper ad expenditures by Sears' retail stores and topped 1955's previous high of $41.7 million by 8.9%. The '56 expenditures were spread among 1,003 daily and weekly newspapers in every state. Sears' newspaper linage last year also set a new record for the company, totaling 284.4 million lines of white space purchased—an increase of 5.1% over the 1955 total.

According to Edward Gudeman, vice president in charge of merchandising, Sears' newspaper ad expenditures represented 78.8% of the company's total advertising budget.

Says Gudeman: "During the past year the newspapers of the nation continued to play the leading role in Sears' promotional efforts. Their effectiveness as a sales medium is demonstrated by the fact that Sears' sales in 1956 reached record high proportions."

HERE'S A TOP AGENCY

EXECUTIVE'S VIEW POINT —

Lawrence Valenstein, chairman, Gray Advertising Agency, Inc., says: "Newspapers provide a favorable product environment for the advertiser because they lend to advertising an aura of excitement with immediacy and urgency on every page. Newspapers also provide an unparalleled flexibility for the advertiser... and are one of the best ways an advertiser can obtain thorough market coverage at one fell swoop."
